Summer Training Area Near ALLENSTEIG

50X1-HUM

SECRET SECURITY INFORMATIONLegend to Enclosure BSummer Training Area Near ALLENSTEIG (4841N-1519E)

This area had formerly been an Austrian, and later a German troop training area. [redacted] Field Marshall PAULUS, (German Army) had trained his troops there. The area was nicknamed "The Austrian Siberia" by Soviet troops because of the cold and rainy weather and the desolate appearance. It contained a polygon (training ground) about 60 km x 40 km, as shown on attached sketch. Railroad detraining points for those going to the polygon were at the villages of NEUNZER (4841N-1523E) and GOMPFRTZ (4843N-1524E).

50X1-HUM

In 1949, 1950, and 1951 most units of the 13th Gds Mees Div and of the 95th Rifle Div and the whole of the 46th Gds Mees Regt went to ALLENSTEIG for training during the summer months. In 1952, subunits of the 46th Gds Mees Regt undertook their summer training in ALLENSTEIG, in such a manner that one battalion would be gone for two or three weeks' training at a time. [redacted]

50X1-HUM

[redacted] the barracks were in poor shape and were falling apart. [redacted]

All buildings in the ALLENSTEIG area, unless stated otherwise below, were barrack type buildings, one-story high, and about 30-30 m x 10 m. Description below is of the camp as it had been in 1949, 1950, and 1951.

1. Open area, about 500 m x 500 m, surrounded by a wooden fence 1 1/2 m high; used for parking of all guns, tanks and vehicles of the 46th Gds Mees Regt. The guns and tanks were under canvas while the trucks and jeeps were without covers.
